SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. 24.

ELECTION OF SUPREME JUDGE On Saturday, Dec. 1.

Did Mr. Buchanan Assure the British Government that the United States were willing to make the Quarrel of the former with Russia their Quarrelt

The London Times, of the 1st inst., in a leading article on the relations between the United States and Great Britain, makes the following statement:

"When the war in the East first broke out, and England found herself in new and unwonted alliance with France, and equally unwonted hostility with Russia, there was no power from which she received assurances of support more hearty, more satisfactory, and more spontaneous than from the United States of America. Even the minister of the Union in this country, unless we are misinformed, testified to the cordial sympathy of the Cabinet of Washington and the nation over which it presides .-He expressed an apprehension as to the durability of our alliance with France, and our ability, alone and unaided, to resist the overwhelming might of Russia. But he desired us to be under no apprehension on that account, for the United States were willing to make our quarrel their own, and aid us with thousands of stout hearts and brawny arms, as ready to pluck down the despotism of the East as to subdue the wilderness and level the giant forests

The London Times does not state upon what authority it makes this bold and unequivocal declaration, and in the absence of this knowledge, we are inclined to think the Times has either misunderstood Mr. Buchanan, or wholly perverted and misrepresented what he did say. We are led to this conclusion from our belief that Mr. Buchanan knew better what became his position as Minister from the United States to Great Britain-that he has been truer to the real sentiments and opinions of the American people, which have, throughout the struggle between Russia and the Allies, certainly not favored the policy of Great Britain, to have given assurance, either officially or semiofficially, or even privately, of any such cordial sympathy as the Times represents him as giving. Mr. Buchanan holds a high diplomatic position in London as the representative of a neutral power-a power that has explicitly ances with none-and it would be most unbecoming in him, either in his official or private capacity, to express the views and give the assurances which the Times so unequivocally asserts he did.

If "the cordial sympathy of the Cabinet of Washington, and of the nation over which it presides," has ever been expressed, in any form, r through any channel, to the British Minister, we hope, as we believe, that a gentleman who stands as high in the estimation of his fellow countrymen as Mr. Buchanan, has not been compelled to disgrace himself by acting as the medium. We cannot credit the assertion in any shape or form, nor can we believe that hat distinguished representative of American interests would allow himself, for an instant, to be made use of in so degrading a performance. If the President and Secretary of State have officially expressed their sympathy for England and hostility to Russia, they must have done it by some other means, by some autographic letter letter, by some special messenger, or by some selected and unusual method. The American Minister in London would cease to be what the people of the United States have supposed him to be, if he would submit to such instructions. For if there be one popular sentiment well ascertained to exist in this country, it is that there is an unqualified lack of sympathy with the cause of England in this contest, and of this both the Cabinet at Washington and its appointee in London must be aware.

Not satisfied with misrepresenting the "sympathy" of Mr. Buchanan, as we feel quite assured it must have done in the paragraph we have quoted, the Times goes on to put into his mouth silly twaddle about "thousands of stout hearts and brawny arms," which were, according to his account, to "aid" the British in keeping the Russians off of Turkey, so that the British themselves might seize the prize. Now, since Kossuth ruined his reputation as a statesman and his welcome as a guest, by preposterous propositions to unite Great Britain and the United States in a sort of Holy Alliance for the better regulation of the rest of mankind, we venture to say that no man who ever trod the American soil and knows the American people, has indulged in that kind of baby talk. Certainly no American born man like James Buchanan, can have let himself out to any such

After the foregoing was prepared, the following dispatch in the New York Tribune, of the 17th, (which we do not find in our other New York exchanges,) met our eye:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1855. The State Department has received by the Pacille a disputch from Mr. Buchanan, unequivocally denying that he had made a tender of the sympathy of the United States in favor of the Allies .-The Administration is under no apprehensions of a repture with England. The question naturally arises upon what authority could the London Times have made the unqualified assertion it did as to Mr. Buchanan's tender of "the cordial sympathy of the Cabinet of Washington and the nation over which it presides," with Great Britain in her war with Russin, coupled with the promise of "thousands of stout hearts and brawny arms" to aid her in that war? Mr. Buchanau's prompt denial of having been the medium of this tender, if made at all, is just what the people of the United States had a right to expect from a statesman of his intelligence and experience. We presume he gave his denial immediate publicity in London, but, if so, it was too late for the Pacific. We may, therefore, look for it by the next arrival. We shall await future

He said, in substance, that he was a practical farmer, that it was not customary for farmers when they went into their fields to sit down upon the plough-tail and spend the day in deciding when they would go home; but they set about their work, and when that was done they went home. He added that he thought the House had better follow the example of the farmer, and do up their work and then go home, and not waste any more time in the present useless discussion. These views met with the entire concurrence of the body, and nothing et All orde s sent us will receive prompt attention, and more was said of going home until the business the work finished and fitted in the best manner, and packed

PRONOUNCING GAZETTEER OF THE WORLD, OR GEOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY. Containing a greater amount of matter than any other sinvolume in the English Language EDITED BY J. THOMAS, M. D., AND T. BALDWIN, ASSISTED BY SEVERAL OTHER GENTLEMEN.

The above work, (upon which over five years of continued labor and research, with a large outlay of money, has been expended) has not been published merely to supply the deficiencies of existing Geneticers, but to furnish a GEO-GRAPHICAL DICTIONARY which should be as comprehenalon in its duries, as perfect in its arrangement, and as complete and accurate in its execution as the BEST DICHONARY

OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE. Among the many claims to superiority which this work has over all others of the kind are the following : 1st. It is a PRONOUNCING GAZETTER, a feature as essential to the completeness of a Geographical Dictionary, as to a Dictionary OF THE EVELSH LANGUAGE. 2d. It contains above 20,000 more Geographical Names than any other Gazett-er of the World. And the notices of all important places will also be found far more full and satisfactory than in any other similar work. 3d. YOUNG AMERICA! Agents Wanted in every county in this and adjoining States To sell the above new and improved CORN AND CORR MILL.

To all such a rare chance to make money will be offered Exclusive State and County privileges will be disposed s unusually fair terms, by application to the pro-PARMERS AND STOCK RAISERS. I offer you a Corn and Cob Mill unsurpassed in the Unn, and which cannot be superceded by past or future in-ntions. It is the very Mill which every Farmer and Stock er should have; it will crush from S to 10 bushels Corn and Cob perhour, with one horse; is easily fitted up and managed; weighs 340 lbs., and as all contact of the grinding surfaces is prevented, will last any farmer an ordinary lifetime. I speak thus of its durability, because the same principle has been fairly tested in the old Back Mill. Who s it that wants

A MILL ON TRIAL for one month, and if it don't give complete satisfaction, to return it? If there be any man thus dispused, let him now speak. Satisfaction is warranted in every case, or the money will be refunded. The Crusher can be attached to horse, water or steam power, which renders it the most convenient Mill south of Mason's and Dixon's line. All other trushers

THE LAWS OF NATURE. a Corn and Cob Mill which admits of a lateral or wabbling motion will, nece sarily, soon wear out, all other Crushers are amenable to this grand odjection, and the Proprietors Dans not dispute it. In the construction of "Young Amea-ICA," I have GAISHO power, and I DEFT CONTRADUCTOR I have lessened friction, and I CHALLENGE ONE WORD to the contrary;

I have prevented a wabbling lateral protion, and all are and an are compelled to acknowledge it; therefore, I assert that it is far superior to any other Mill. I am now selling this Tennessee invention at the small sum of FIFTY DOLLARS.

And any one wanting a "good thing," are carpestly request-ed to examine the true merits and principles of this Mill, and order from the Proprietors or Agonts.
